

Politechnika Łódzka

11th ECNP International Conference on Nanostructured Polymers and Nanocomposites

26-29 September 2022
Lodz, Poland

PLENARY SPEAKERS

We are pleased to announce that two world-renowned scientists accepted our invitation to deliver plenary lectures:

Prof. Krzysztof Matyjaszewski

Carnegie Mellon University, Pittsburgh, USA

Prof. Klaus Müllen

Max-Planck-Institut für Polymerforschung,
Mainz, Germany

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

To be confirmed

CONFERENCE CHAIRPERSONS

Beata Łuszczynska

Marcin Kozanecki

INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC COMMITTEE

Jacek Ulański – chairman

Costas Galiotis

Jean-François Gérard

José Kenny

Carmen Mijangos

Francesca Nanni

Jiří-Pfleger

José Luis Viviente Sole

Brigitte Voit

SCOPE & TOPICS

(not exclusive)

- Progress in synthesis and processing of polymer nanocomposites
- Graphene-based materials
- Polymers for biomedical applications and for environmental protection
- Modelling of polymer synthesis and processing
- Advanced techniques of characterization of polymer composites
- Organic, printed and wearable electronics
- Industrial applications of multifunctional polymeric materials; ADL materials

Politechnika Łódzka

The 11th ECNP International Conference on Nanostructured Polymers and Nanocomposites, originally planned for 2020 and postponed due to the pandemic, will finally be organized in 2022. The tradition of this conference dates back to 2004 and stems from the European Network of Excellence NANOFUN-POLY. The ECNP conference visited Dresden, Lyon, Corfu, Paris, Madrid, Prague, Rome, and now it is time for Łódź. The topics of the conference include the study of polymers from basic research to applications, with particular emphasis (but not only) on functional nanostructured polymers and composites.

CONFERENCE INFO

The conference will start on Monday, 26. 09. 2022, at 2 p.m., and will end on Thursday, 29. 09. 2022, after lunch.

REGISTRATION AND FEES

Participants are invited to register via web page: <http://ecnp2020.p.lodz.pl/>

Registration fees and important dates will be announced at a later date.

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

Participants are invited to apply for oral or poster presentations. The submission of short abstract is required (abstract template will be available on the Conference website). The Conference Advisory Board will qualify the final form of the presentation (oral or poster) and inform the authors about its decision. A book of abstract will be accessible on the Conference web page and delivered to participants in a paper form.

CONFERENCE VENUE

Łódź is the third largest city in Poland, situated in the center of the country, easily accessible by various means of transport. Lodz was traditionally the center of the textile industry, known as the Polish Manchester, but nowadays advanced technology industries are dynamically developing. A city of beautiful parks and palaces, old factories and Art Nouveau tenement houses, where history is mixed with modernity. A city of four cultures that contributed to its development in the 19th century. Nowadays known as the capital of Polish cinema, with the nickname 'HollyŁódź'.

Rector of Lodz University of Technology (TUL)
